11© Man's Best Friend

- 1)a) The dog is called man's best friend because of their friendly, obedient, and faithful nature. They have been companions to humans for thousands of years, providing emotional support, protection, and loyalty.
- 1)b) Caesar led King Edward VII's funeral procession because he was King Edward VII's pet terrier. It was a symbolic gesture to honor the bond between the king and his beloved dog.
- 1)c) Mozart was a famous composer. He was known for his exceptional musical talent and is considered one of the greatest composers in history.
- 1)d) yes I have a pet. It's a cat and its name is Allyne.
- 1)e) Llewellyn killed his dog Gelert due to a tragic misunderstanding. When Llewellyn returned from a hunt, he found Gelert covered in blood and his baby missing from the bed. Assuming Gelert had harmed the child, Llewellyn impulsively killed the dog with his sword. Later, Llewellyn discovered that Gelert had actually saved the baby's life by killing a wolf that had attacked the child. It was a regrettable mistake born out of misinterpretation.

1)f) In Arctic regions, people travel when rivers and lakes are frozen by using sleds pulled by dogs. The dogs serve as a means of transportation across the icy terrain.

1)g) Dogs do not see as well as humans in terms of color vision. They are considered color-blind. However, dogs have excellent hearing and smelling abilities, which compensate for their weaker sense of sight.

1)h) Dogs notice objects primarily through movement, followed by brightness, and then shape. Their visual perception prioritizes detecting motion, allowing them to be alert to potential threats or interesting stimuli in their environment.

1)i) The average lifespan of dogs varies depending on the breed and individual factors. Generally, dogs live between 10 to 13 years, although some smaller breeds may live longer, while larger breeds may have shorter lifespans.

1)j) Whether a dog of that age is considered old or young depends on the perspective. In comparison to humans, a dog at the age of 13 is considered old because it has already reached its senior years and experienced a significant portion of its lifespan. However, within the context of the average dog's lifespan, a 13-year-old dog may still have some vitality left, but it would be considered a senior dog.

2) Each of the dogs mentioned in the passage has gained fame for different reasons. Here's a brief description of why each of these dogs is famous:

1. Bako: The passage does not provide specific information about a famous dog named Bako. It's possible that Bako is a fictional or lesser-known dog and might not have achieved widespread fame or recognition.
2. Barry: Barry was a legendary St. Bernard dog who lived in the early 1800s in Switzerland. He is known for his heroic mountain rescues, having saved around 40 people lost in the snow on the treacherous St. Bernard Pass. Barry's courage and life-saving efforts have made him an enduring symbol of rescue and loyalty.
3. Gelert: Gelert was a faithful dog in Welsh folklore. According to the story, Gelert belonged to Llewellyn, a lord in North Wales. One day, Llewellyn went hunting, leaving his baby at home. When he returned, he found Gelert covered in blood and the baby missing. Believing that Gelert had killed the child, Llewellyn tragically killed Gelert. Later, he discovered the baby safe and sound, with a dead wolf found under the bed. Gelert had actually saved the child's life, and the misunderstanding led to Gelert's unjust demise.

4. Laika: Laika was a stray dog from Moscow, Russia. In 1957, she became the first living creature to orbit the Earth aboard the Soviet spacecraft Sputnik 2. Laika's mission paved the way for human space travel but, unfortunately, she did not survive the journey. Her sacrifice and contribution to space exploration made her an iconic figure in the history of space exploration.
5. Lassie: Lassie is a fictional Rough Collie dog who gained immense popularity through books, films, and television series. Lassie is known for her intelligence, loyalty, and her ability to rescue people in perilous situations. The character of Lassie has become an enduring symbol of bravery and devotion, captivating audiences around the world.

Bridges

The first bridge that was built by man was probably a natural bridge. Men no doubt used a tree trunk that stretched across a stream.

Solved by Nazrana C231444

Later, man built his own bridges. We know that bridge building began very early in history. The Chinese and the Greeks built bridges thousands of years ago. But the greatest bridge builders of ancient times were the Romans. No wooden bridges by them have been preserved.

But a number of their stone bridges are still standing. Some very fine bridges were also built in twelfth century Europe.

The first cast iron bridge was built in 1799 in England. The most modern type of bridge is the steel bridge.

The Bayonne Bridge, stretching from Bayonne, New Jersey, to Staten Island, New York, is one of the largest steel arch bridges. It was built in 1931.

The Voyage of Vasco da Gama

The first sailor from Europe to reach India by way of the Cape of Good Hope was the Portuguese commander, Vasco da Gama. In 1497 King Manuel I of Portugal sent out four ships in order to find a way to India by sea. Da Gama was placed by the king in command of the ships. The men suffered great hardships. They wanted to turn back, but Da Gama refused, saying, "I will not go back to Portugal until I have reached India."

Solved by Nazrana C231444

Ten months after starting their journey, Da Gama and his men arrived in Calicut. They were the first Europeans to reach the East by sailing round Africa. Vasco da Gama returned to Portugal in 1499 with only one ship. But he opened a trade route to India that has never since closed.

Corbett was in Champawat, talking to the headman. He was on the track of a tigress. He went on a path that a girl had taken, and saw splashes of blood on the ground. On the top of a nearby hill, he found her skirt.

Solved by Nazrana C231444

Next day he hid in the long grass by the side of the track. He had placed men in a line on the hillside across a narrow valley behind the tigress. The tigress soon appeared on the path. Corbett fired three times, but he only wounded the tigress. He had only had three cartridges in his rifle. The wounded tigress changed direction and climbed on to a flat rock, in order to spring down on Corbett. He grabbed the rifle of the headman in great haste and killed the tigress.

Corbett would always respond to appeals to help the village people in their attempts to destroy man-eating tigers.
